Dean of Arts and Sciences

ADD: DAS 032 – Training in Organization, Wellness, Academics, Responsibilities and Discipline in the ELP. (1-2) I, II, S. This course is designed to engage English Language Program (ELP) students who are at risk due to repeated non-performance in ELP classes. Explores good study skills, healthy living habits, community involvement, self-discipline, and guided study sessions. One credit required for students after one semester of non-performance, two credits required for continued enrollment for those with repeated non-performance over consecutive semesters. Pr.: Department placement. K-State 8: None

RATIONALE: The English Language Program (ELP) normally has a rate of 10-12% of its students who are not successful in their English classes due to non-attendance and non-performance. These students tend not to be successful repeatedly. They do not progress through the ELP and do not matriculate into their academic programs. These students show poor study skills, lack of self-discipline, problems with adaptation to the American culture and educational system, and poor individual living habits.

In order to address the needs of this group of students, the ELP has developed a special course to help them be successful and to aid in the retention of international students. The objective of the course will be to give the students who have consistently not performed for two semesters the skills to become successful, independent students. The focus of the course will be on study skills, organization and time management, self-discipline, and wellness.

There are courses and programs on campus offered by Lafene and the Academic Assistance Center which address several of these aspects. However, the ELP students need an integrated approach. In addition, ELP students have special considerations. First, they have limited English. Second, many come from cultures that are much more structured than the American culture and less individualistic, and third, they are in the process of adapting to this new culture and educational system.

We will offer this course in order to improve their wellness and academic mindset overall and to ease this group of students into the university proper. Students who complete this course successfully will have achieved good study skills, Healthy habits for living and coping with stress in a new academic environment, and self-discipline to become independent and successful.

EFFECTIVE DATE: Spring 2012

ADD: DAS 159 – Digital English for International Students. (2) I, II. Instruction in online language and communication for international students in order to develop strategies and skills for working effectively in academic digital interaction and collaboration. Includes study of function and use of different web 2.0 tools, communication skills for intercultural collaboration, and the English language styles and rhetoric appropriate in specific online settings. Co-Req: Concurrent enrollment in DAS 154 or DAS 152. K-State 8: None

IMPACT: This course is only offered to students enrolled in the English Language Program. Charles Griffin in Communication Studies has indicated his support for this class, as has Roger McHaney in Department of Management.

RATIONALE: International students of English find a special challenge in online learning environments. As second language students, they often rely on nonverbal clues to help them determine meaning. Online communication is often text-based, so that facial expression, tone of voice, and body language are not available to provide these additional clues to meaning. Also, an understanding of idiomatic English may be assumed and students without a native speaker's intuition for meaning may find that their use of language leads to misunderstandings in interaction and collaboration. In addition, most online learning in the USA is built on the Western, socio-constructivist learning paradigm that requires intensive learners' interaction and collaboration. ESL students have different cultural norms and academic experiences that might limit their success in online learning environments. As research shows, international students from high power distance cultures often do not take leadership to initiate discussion online, avoid challenging other opinions, interact more with teachers than with peers, and engage in a more formal type of communication that does not create social presence and sense of belonging. Their indirect communication style can be too confusing for American and international counterparts.

Furthermore, different communication tools (discussion boards, blogs, wikis, etc) have different affordances for self-presentation, communication and learning. It's important for students to understand what style of communication is expected with these different tools and what language is appropriate in each. For second language students, register and connotation are some of the last skills they acquire and they must be specifically taught. Thus, to be successful in online learning settings, ESL students need to be deliberately taught appropriate language and communication skills as well as a clear understanding of how cultural background can affect communication.

This class will address these issues in three ways. First, the class will look at several different types of web 2.0 tools. Next, students will apply appropriate language and communication skills using these tools. Finally, the students will become acquainted with cultural issues and engage in collaborative projects that allow them to build practical communication skills to work in a multicultural environment.

IMPACT: This course is only offered to students enrolled in the English Language Program. Charles Griffin in Communication Studies has indicated support for this class, as has Roger McHaney in Department of Management.

Chemistry

FROM: CHM 230 – Chemistry II. (4) I, II, S. Second course of a two-semester study of the principles of chemistry and the properties of the elements and their compounds. Pr.: CHM 210

TO: CHM 230 – Chemistry II. (4) I, II, S. Second course of a two-semester study of the principles of chemistry and the properties of the elements and their compounds. Pr.: CHM 210 or CHM 220.

RATIONALE: The prerequisites for CHM 230 are CHM 210 or CHM 220. The undergraduate catalogue only shows CHM 210, so we would like to update the catalogue.

EFFECTIVE DATE: Spring 2012

Communication Studies, Theatre and Dance

ADD: DANCE 350 – West African Styles of Social Dance and Music. (2) I, II. Explores several styles of dancing and drumming from West Africa. Instruction includes technique in the traditional social dances, drumming/musical skills, and songs for the social dances. History, traditions, and social context of the dances. No prior experience is necessary. All musical instruments are supplied for class. K- State 8: (1) Aesthetic Experience and Interpretive Understanding and (4) Global Issues and Perspectives.

RATIONALE: To enhance the dance environment and the university experience by diversifying the curriculum with world dance styles/world music styles, thus offering world experiences otherwise not available to this campus community.

EFFECTIVE DATE: Spring 2012

English

ADD: ENGL 570 – Law, Politics, and Literature. () I, II, S. Classic and contemporary works of literature, including novels, plays, short stories, and poems, are used to explore themes in law and politics. Pr.: ENGL 200 or junior standing or POLSC 301 or junior standing. Cross-listed with POLSC 670. K-State 8: (1)Aesthetic Experience and Interpretive Understanding and (8) Social Sciences.

RATIONALE: This new, interdisciplinary course uses classic and contemporary works of literature to explore themes in law and politics and is cross-listed with POLSC 670. Many law schools offer a course on law and literature, and some English and cultural studies undergraduate programs offer a course on politics and literature. This class combines features of both of those type of courses. The course can be used to fulfill our undergraduate major requirement as one of 3 courses numbered ENGL 315-599. Graduate students in other departments and undergraduates may also take the course for credit. It will be attractive to students in the Primary Texts certificate program, and as part of the pre-law studies curriculum. Political Science lists this course at the 600 level, but the course is better suited to our curriculum at the 500 level.

Kinesiology

ADD: KIN 101 – Topics in Strength and Conditioning. (1) I, II, S. Discussion of topics and participation in activities of importance in strength and conditioning. K-State 8: None

RATIONALE: This course will be offered through the Division of Continuing Education and will include a variety of fitness and conditioning topics.

EFFECTIVE DATE: Spring 2012

ADD: KIN 102 – Topics in Aerobic Exercise. (1) I, II, S. Discussion of topics and participation in activities of importance in aerobic exercise. K-State 8: None.

RATIONALE: This course will be offered through the Division of Continuing Education and will include a variety of aerobic exercise topics.

EFFECTIVE DATE: Spring 2012

Music

ADD: MUSIC 232 – Fundamentals of Teaching Music. (2) I, II. Techniques, materials, and experiences for a variety of music classes will be examined through discovery. Furthermore, lesson plan development, writing, and implementation will be examined in detail. Pr.: Sophomore standing in music. K-State 8: None.

RATIONALE: This course is part of a curriculum reorganization that will have several benefits: (a) provide music education coursework during a students' sophomore made up of one credit hour from MUSIC 511 and one credit hour from MUSIC 512; (b) enhance student perception of content relevant to taking components of secondary general methods that had been split between two courses and focusing on the topic of a course of its own; (c) prepare students' ability to write lesson plans before the more advanced method's courses; and (d) further develop the electronic portfolio already in place. The course description is more appropriate for the content of the course.

FROM: MUSIC 511 – Music in the Schools K-6. (4)-II. ~~The music curriculum in grades K-6, including a study of the musical characteristics of children and materials and techniques for teaching instrumental, vocal, and general music at this level.~~ Pr.: Admission to teacher education and junior standing in music.

TO: MUSIC 511 – Music in the Schools K-6. (3) II. The study of the musical characteristics of children and development of appropriate curriculum, instructional materials and techniques, and related technology for teaching musical understanding, literacy, multi-cultural connections, and creative improvisation in grades K-6 instrumental, vocal, and general music. This course includes supervised field experiences. Pr.: Admission to teacher education and junior standing in music.

RATIONALE: This change is part of a curriculum reorganization that will have several benefits: (a) provide music education coursework during a students' sophomore made up of one credit hour from MUSIC 511 and one credit hour from MUSIC 512; (b) enhance student perception of content relevant to taking components of secondary general methods that had been split between two courses and focusing on the topic of a course of its own; (c) prepare students' ability to write lesson plans before the more advanced method's courses; and (d) further develop the electronic portfolio already in place. Biology

ADD: BIOL 808 – Mechanisms of Eukaryotic Gene Regulation. (2) II. Examines important concepts in the mechanisms of gene regulation at the molecular level. Focuses on gene regulation in eukaryotes at the level of transcription, splicing and translation and on RNA's diverse roles. Composed of a lecture (1 hr) covering important concepts and a student recitation (1 hr) of scientific articles. Pr.: BIOCH 765 and BIOL 541 or BIOL 705, or BIOL 707.

RATIONALE: Molecular biology forms the basis of applied bioscience including medicine and biotechnology. Understanding the mechanism of gene expression and its regulation is a vital component of molecular biology. This course emphasizes the understanding from the perspectives of biochemical and structural biology and thereby complements the core courses of the Molecular, Cellular and Developmental Biology program of Division of Biology.

ADD: ENGL 756 – Business Communication. (3) I, II, S. A writing-intensive course intended for advanced undergraduate students, graduate students, and working professionals in business. Pr.: ENGL 200 or 210 or 415 or 417 or 516 or graduate standing.

RATIONALE: ENGL 756 will meet the needs of students enrolled in professional degree programs, particularly students enrolled in M.A. degree programs, including Business Administration, Accountancy, and Agribusiness. A pilot course for Food Science, offered under the rubric course ENGL 604 "Expository Writing Workshop," has seen steady and increasing enrollment, and it should now be offered under a dedicated course and title. ENGL 756 may be offered face-to-face or online, since many of these students have professional commitments and face scheduling and commuting constraints.

IMPACT: Dr. Charlie Griffin, Head of CSTD, has reviewed the proposed course and supports its creation.

EFFECTIVE DATE: Spring 2012

ADD: ENGL 758 – Scientific Communication. (3) I, II, S. A writing-intensive course intended for advanced undergraduate students, graduate students and working professionals in science. Pr.: ENGL 200 or 210 or 415 or 417 or 516 or graduate standing.

RATIONALE: ENGL 758 will meet the needs of students enrolled in professional degree programs, particularly students enrolled in M.A. degree programs, including Food Science and Agribusiness. A pilot course for Food Science, offered under the rubric course ENGL 604

“Expository Writing Workshop,” has seen steady and increasing enrollment, and it should now be offered under a dedicated course and title. ENGL 758 may be offered face-to-face or online, since many of these students have professional commitments and face scheduling and consulting constraints.

EFFECTIVE DATE: Spring 2012

ADD: ENGL 769 – Creative Writing Workshop/Special Topic. (3) I, II, S. Special topics vary. Repeatable with change of topic. Pr: Instructor permission.

RATIONALE: ENGL 769 will allow for time- and focus-specific courses in creative writing at the advanced level. The course will serve a parallel function to that of ENGL 469 Special Topics in Creative Writing at the undergraduate/introductory level and will enrich the offerings available to advanced undergraduate and graduate students.

Journalism and Mass Communication

ADD: MC 750 – Strategic Health Communication. (3) II. The role of effective communication through mass media and other communication strategies in health promotion and behavior change. Includes the theories and strategies used to promote public health messages, services or products for multicultural audiences, with a focus on human, environment and animal health. Legal, ethical issues and gender issues in health communication will be given special attention. Pr.: Graduate standing, or instructor permission with a 2.5 GPA.

RATIONALE: This class represents a component of our graduate program’s new focus in health and strategic communications, and has been successfully offered under the trial number MC 740 Colloquium in Mass Communications. The class is already listed in the degree plan of the interdisciplinary Public Health graduate degree, and when it was offered in the Spring 2011 semester, the class drew students from Public Health, Kinesiology, Family studies, Nutrition, Psychology, Communication Studies and , of course, our own students from Journalism and Mass Communications. The class represents the research interests of some JMC faculty members who have published extensively in this field.

IMPACT: We have checked with the two most likely affected degree programs on campus: Agricultural Communications (currently an undergraduate-only program) and Communication Studies. Steve Harbstreit, the curriculum coordinator for Ag Comm, and Charles Griffin, the department head in Communication Studies, have both consulted their respective faculties, and both report that there are no objections.

English Optional Secondary Teacher Licensure Program (32 credit hours)

Licensure in one or more of these optional programs is available only to students who have successfully completed an approved full licensure program in another (first or primary) teaching area.

These optional programs give individuals the opportunity to teach in more than one area. These options lead to full licensure in the subject or subject area for grades 7 through 12. A cumulative 2.5 GPA is required in all courses attempted in the subject or subject area. K-State will recommend an endorsement to the teaching licensure for any additional teaching area when all requirements have been completed, provided all requirements of the approved degree program and the secondary area of licensure have also been completed.

RATIONALE: This change is part of a curriculum reorganization that will have several benefits: (a) provide music education coursework during a students' sophomore year made up of one credit hour from MUSIC 511 and one credit hour from MUSIC 512; (b) enhance student perception of content relevance by taking components of secondary general methods that had been split between two courses and focusing on the topic of a course of its own; (c) prepare students; ability to write lesson plans before the more advanced method's courses; and (d) further develop the electronic portfolio already in place.

Master's report (recital)

In place of a master's recital and report, all students will present a lecture-recital that will be musically-illustrated presentation on some aspect of piano pedagogy.

Master's report (recital), (2 credit hours) All graduate students majoring in performance will perform a full recital of not less than one hour. The program for the recital must be approved by the student's advisory committee, and the advisory committee will judge the recital. All solo literature (including concertos) will be played from memory, unless the advisory committee grants an exception in recognition of unusual circumstances.
